BACKGROUND

The Social Services Time Study (SSTS) is the federally approved mechanism for reimbursing county agencies for certain social service costs and has been the basis for targeted case management rate setting since 1993. The SSTS is designed to assure the proper distribution of county social service costs among the various federal funding sources, which support social service programs in Minnesota. Cost distribution is determined based on random moment sampling of social service staff throughout each quarter. Each SSTS participant is required to characterize his or her activity for the moment sampled according to the activity code definitions in the SSTS.

CHANGES FROM PRIOR BULLETIN

The activity categories, codes and definitions remain the same. The sampling method has changed to a web based system. See page four of this bulletin for additional information.

ACTION REQUIRED

Training

Training is required whenever changes are made to the SSTS. Since the codes and definitions are the same as those previously published in bulletin #08-32-13 dated 9/16/2008, new training for existing SSTS participants is not required. However, DHS recommends that SSTS coordinators develop periodic refresher training sessions for existing SSTS participants. This ongoing availability of training will ensure that all staff is well acquainted with the SSTS activity categories, codes, definitions and procedures.
Activity Code Training for all future SSTS Participants

SSTS coordinators are responsible for providing SSTS activity code training for all county social services staff and contracted State Operated Services (SOS) staff that provides Adult Mental Health Targeted Case Management services to county clients. Training must be completed before the new staff can participate in the time study and their training dates must be entered in the county SSTS employee data base accessed through the web based application.

The SSTS random moment log is divided into the following five categories:

This categorized approach directs the SSTS participant to choose a category of activity and then a code number within the category. Attachment B provides a list of the categories and code detail within each category.

SSTS Web based Random Moment Log Sheet

The SSTS random moment log sheet became electronic on July 1, 2010 using a web based delivery system to notify participants when a random moment occurs. Each participant will be notified within five minutes of the occurrence of a random moment. Participants must select the category and then the applicable SSTS code number that best represents what they are doing at the time of the random moment. After selecting the activity code, the participant clicks on submit and the random moment is complete. In some instances random moments need to be validated; complete instructions can be found in the web based instructional manual.

Participants have 7 calendar days to complete a random moment. On the eighth day, the link to the random moment becomes invalid and the participant then misses the opportunity to complete the random moment.
