An overview of MN Rule 9525 (Rule 185)
History of Rule 185 Case Management and the DD Waiver

• 1974 Developmental Disabilities Act passed by the US Congress

• Using federal guidelines, MN established Rule 185; Revised in 1991, to MN Rule 9525.

• Prior to 1983 the two major options for providing residential services for persons with DD/RC:
  • Regional Treatment Centers (RTCs)
  • Intermediate Care Facilities (ICF/DD)

• 1984 Developmental Disability (DD Waiver) approved by CMS
• Lists the standards that govern services available to people with developmental disabilities and related conditions.

• Defines “developmental disability” and “related conditions”

• Defines the eligibility requirements for services and supports
What does the law mean for people we serve?

• Defines whether a person is eligible for these services
• Provides access to and coordination of supports and services
• Supports people with developmental disabilities in living a better life
How does the law guide case managers?

• Defines the service of case management
• Defines the eligibility requirements for services and supports
Rule 185 Case Management Eligibility
Eligibility for DD/Rule 185 Case Management

• There are two ways that a person can qualify for DD/Rule 185 case management:

  1. The diagnostic determination process determines that a person has a developmental disability or

  2. The diagnostic determination revealed a related condition that could potentially make the person eligible for Rule 185 case management services
What is a Qualified developmental disability professional (QDDP)?

Individual qualified to work as an expert with people with developmental disabilities or related conditions

- Four-year college degree in an area related to developmental disabilities and
- Minimum of one-year experience working in that field.
- Must be employed by a county or tribal nation

For the federal definition of a QDDP, see 42 CFR 483.430.
Diagnostic Determination Process

Diagnostic Evaluation

Medical Evaluation

Social History
What qualifies as a “comprehensive diagnostic evaluation?”

• Comprehensive Diagnostic Evaluation:
  • Standardized test of intellectual functioning and an assessment of adaptive skills, OR
  • For children under the age of five, standardized assessments of developmental functioning.
Information about the person’s social and developmental history:

• When was the person diagnosed

• Previous and current support

• Factors that may have contributed to person’s current functioning level

• Any supporting or contradicting information that the person had a developmental disability before the age of 22
• Medical evaluation of the person
  • The medical evaluation must be performed by a licensed physician no more than 12 months before the date of application for case management

• The medical evaluation must evaluate the individual’s general health, including vision, hearing, and any physical or neurological disorders

• The case manager must request that the evaluation include the physician’s comments on the individual’s mental health and emotional well-being, if known
What is a Developmental Disability?

• “Substantial functional limitations and significantly sub-average intellectual functioning...”

• Substantial functional limitations: long term inability to significantly perform an activity or task

• Significantly sub-average intellectual functioning: full scale IQ score of 70 or less, based on assessment that includes 1 or more individually administered standardized intelligence tests developed for the purpose of assessing intellectual functioning.

• “… exists concurrently with demonstrated deficits in adaptive behavior.”

  • Deficits in adaptive behavior: significant limitation in a person’s effectiveness in meeting the standards of maturation, personal independence and social responsibility expected for the person’s age level and cultural group, as determined by clinical assessment and, generally, standardized scales

• All conditions are manifested before the person’s 22nd birthday.
Questions to ask when determining if someone is eligible for DD/Rule 185 case management services:

- Is the IQ score 70 or below? And
- Was the condition present prior to the person’s 22\(^{nd}\) birthday? If no...
- Is there another condition is present? If so, move on to related conditions checklist.

Person has a developmental disability

- End diagnostic determination process, move the person on to Rule 185 Case Management
Person does not have a DD diagnosis

- Continue with the diagnostic determination process
- Complete related conditions checklist
• DHS Form 3848: Related Conditions Checklist, guides the process of determining if a person has a related condition.

• The form assists the QDDP;
  - Determines if the needed information has been collected and
  - Summarizes the results of the Assessments, history, level of functioning, and treatment needs

The Related Conditions Checklist is completed annually

What is a “Related Condition?”

6. Is found to be closely related to developmental disability because the condition results in impairment of general intellectual functioning or adaptive behavior similar to that of persons with developmental disability.

7. Requires treatment or services similar to those required for persons with developmental disability.
8. Is manifested before the person reaches 22 years of age
9. Is likely to continue indefinitely
10. Consider how a person without identified deficits and of the same age as this person would perform in the following areas of life activities. Compare how this person would perform to determine whether he or she has substantial functional limitations in three or more of these areas. Using all diagnostic and assessment information, check “YES” below to those that apply, check “NO” to those that do not apply.
