CONSIDERATIONS FOR LESS THAN TWO YEAR LICENSE

Licenses may be granted for up to a two year period. It is up to the county or private agency’s discretion to determine whether to recommend that a license be granted for a one or two year period. Some factors to consider when determining whether to recommend a less than two-year license include the following:

- New applicants
- License is currently under “Conditional” status
- Agency is in the process of recommending a negative action on the license
- A program where there has been a determination of abuse, neglect, or maltreatment within the past year
- There have been substantiated licensing complaints. Consider the NATURE, SEVERITY, and CHRONICITY of complaints.
- The provider has failed to correct violations on previously issued correction orders. Assess the NATURE, SEVERITY, and CHRONICITY of the area(s) of non-compliance
